HANKUW.

The recent threatened troubles in Wuchang have quieted down, and the cloud that for a little hung over us has cleared away. It has always been the custom in this province to pay the soldiers their wages monthly in advance; but the present acting Viceroy appears to have thought that he could mend matters by with holding their pay until they had earned it. This, however, was strongly objected to by the soldiers: the Fu-tai and the Fan-tai also advised the Vicercy not to attempt any change, as it was a very old custom. There doubtless would have been trouble as the Viceroy is said to be very last moment he gave way, the money was forthcoming as usual and all cause for anxiety vanished. Soldiers we have seen of late in considerable numbers: some bound to Nanking, others by way of the Poyung lake and then overland to the coast, probably to Foochow. Many of them are said to belong to the great Szechuen warrior Pac Chao of wheelbarrow artillery fame, who is reported to have gone to Knangsi with a part of his newly collected braves to assist in driving the French out of Tonquin. Boats have been collook for boats, in others boatmen looked for soldiers. The larger boats that are loaded for Nanking and the lower river are only too glad to get a few soldiers to take down, for when they have soldiers on board they pay no Customs or lekin dues en routo. No barrier official would at empt to collect any dues from boat carrysure of getting roughly handled for their trouble. There is, however, one drawback to the arrange ment. The lekin barrier at Tatung issues a pass to all junks bound down, whether leaded or empty. This pass has to be delivered on the return of the junk, or the boatman neceives two hundred bamboos, as it is taken for granted that he has passed down without having paid his lekin dues, which, as the river is very wide, is $314, the property of one Dingamull Assam, on quite an easy matter. THE NORTHERN CHINESE ARMY.

It will be interesting to some of our readers' to learn something of the strength of the Chinese army in the North, and to know how they are distributed. Before many months are past, if the Chinese will not settle their reckoning with the French, they will no doubt be visited by about 20,000 French troops, who will start on a march to Peking. The following is the strength and positions M. 14 of the Northern army as it stood at the end of last month: The Northern Army, known as the Pei Yang

In all there are 159 Battalions of foot, each battalion consisting of 500 men, and 27 Battalions of horse, each battalion of 250 men, making 79,500 foot and 5,750 horse; a total of 86,250 From our Chinese friends we learn that Li

The authorities here have received a despatch from the Tsung-li Yamen the contents of which will probably cause some anxiety to the Japanese Consul at this port. It appears that Li Shuchang, the Chinese Minister at Tokio, has written to his Government warning them that Japan, taking advantage of the Franco-Chinese trouble, has sent some Japanese spies, dressed in Chinese clothes and able to speak the language, over to Chins, in order to find out what is going on They are said to be drawing maps of the country, and it is recommended that steps be taken to discover them .- N.
